G. O. P. SELECTS COMMITTEE TO 'REVIVE' PARTY

St. Louis Conclave Plans Program Group of 100 Members

LEADERS PREDICT LENGTHY SESSION

Brains, Not Geography, Urged In Selection Of Names

(By Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, Dec. 13.—The Republican executive committee today undertook the thorny task of selecting 700 to 800 names for a program committee of 100—the men and women who will draft a declaration of principles designed to spur the once dominant political party back to power.

From former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, who will be 77 next month, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, approaching 36, ranged the broad variety of the proposed personnel.

Chairman John D. M. Hamilton traveled here from Washington on a train due just before the 2:30 p. m. (3:30 E. S. T.) opening of the deliberations which, because of their magnitude and delicacy, may require several days. Twenty-one of the executive group of 23 were expected.

Cleavage Behind Words
Behind the spokesmen and their formal language lay the cleavage among those Republicans who look to Alf M. Landon for leadership and those who place first the counsel of Herbert Hoover.

Earl Warren, California committeeman, surveying the many famous figures suggested for membership, said: "You can't wish men into a position of leadership in a party. The public picks its own leaders."

As a corollary, Warren observed that regardless of any "withdrawal" statements that might be made by Landon and Hoover they nevertheless always would be identified in the public mind with the party. He said he would not like to see the party deprived of their advice for appearances sake.

"I think we will decide the whole destiny of the party in choosing members of the steering committee, particularly in the selection of a chairman. If the committee is to mean anything it must represent every honorable interest in the nation and that means all groups from organized labor to big business. The committee must be chosen on a basis of brains, not geography," he said.

Warren's last sentence was echoed by Mrs. John E. Hilman, Colorado committeewoman.

In Position to Lead

Senator Capper (R., Kas.) said in a Washington radio cast that Landon, who Friday counted himself out of the 1940 presidential race "now is in a position to lead the Republican party councils."

Landon has opposed a 1938 mid-term Republican convention which Hoover has advocated it. Hoover said in a Boston address, "I do not want any public office." Thursday he spoke again in Chicago, Thursday he spoke again in Washington, expects to visit New York friends.

Today's action is the consequence of a recent Chicago compromise of Landon and Hoover forces. The committee of 100 must submit its conclusions to the full national convention and that group then will decide whether to call a mid-term convention or otherwise to proclaim the platform so drafted.

Prizes Old Papers On Auditors' Group

LISBON, Dec. 13.—The announcement of the organization of the first state auditors' association in 1867, is a prized possession of Ray Adams, chief deputy in County Auditor John Irwin's office.

The announcement states the purpose of the organization and gives the names of five officials serving on the central committee. It is dated March 19, 1867. The group recently held its 70th meeting in Columbus at which time Mr. Adams was named to an important committee post.

Irwin was appointed chairman of the executive committee at the same meeting.

SENATE PUSHES RELIEF PLANS

Stop-Gap Program Will Be Rushed to Gov. Davey Today

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—The Ohio senate prepared to rush a $3,500,000 December poor relief program to Gov. Martin L. Davey today, with a permanent aid to the indigent plan and appropriation of funds to keep various state departments operating.

Some observers predicted the senate would add its approval quickly to that of the house given previously to four bills designed to assist counties and municipalities to care for their needy.

Yoder Action Awaited
Whether Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder and his self-styled "hatchmen" would oppose passage of the measures and kill the stop-gap effort remained to be seen at the senate's evening session.

The four bills passed by the house last week would:

Take $1,000,000 from the general revenue fund and allocate it to local governments on the basis of need, the funds to be deducted from 1938 allocations;

Authorize issuance of notes by county commissioners against anticipated utilities excise tax collection surpluses;

Permit 58 counties to use 1937 relief fund balances now unavailable through a court decision, and Authorize use by counties for emergency poor relief of balances in their flood relief funds.

Other than proposal of two divergent permanent relief plans by Gov. Martin L. Davey and an unofficial joint legislative committee, the only action toward 1938 aid to the needy was approval by the house taxation committee of two bills.

Permits Special Levies
One would permit approval of special levies for poor relief by a 55 per cent affirmative vote instead of the present 65 per cent requirement and the other would take $6,500,000 from sales tax income for relief.

Several state departments have reduced personnel and other expenses awaiting appropriation of additional funds as a supplemental budget, included in Governor Davey's call for the special session.

Buildings Checked For Fire Insurance

The Ohio Inspection Bureau today began a three-month task of re-rating the city for fire insurance. The present rates were set following an inspection six years ago.

The survey will be in charge of W. A. Lotze, superintendent of the Youngstown office of the Ohio Inspection Bureau, and those assisting him will be L. R. Decker, A. H. Peters, R. J. McCloskey, A. C. Cunningham and A. C. Lindeberg.

Decker, one of the inspectors, indicated the general classification of the city will not change. Buildings throughout the city, with the exception of private homes, will be checked.

The inspectors check the type of construction of buildings, the class of occupants, the various fire hazards prevailing and the exposure to surrounding buildings in determining the fire insurance rates.

U. S., BRITAIN CONFERRING ON SHIP BOMBING

Foreign Secretary Eden Advises Members of Parliament

STRONG PROTEST MADE TO JAPAN

English Ship Dares Gunfire To Aid American Wounded

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Dec. 13.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today told the house of commons that Great Britain and the United States were "in consultation" regarding Japanese attacks on their Yangtze river gunboats.

The foreign secretary, who previously had talked with the American charge d'affaires, Herschal V. Johnson, and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, asked the commons to refrain from further questioning in view of "the grave issues involved."

"His majesty's Ambassador in Tokyo has made the strongest protest to the (Japanese) minister of foreign affairs, who has promised to make the fullest inquiry," Eden said, referring to the shelling of the British gunboat Ladybird.

"The great seriousness of these incidents needs no emphasis." A great cheer arose from the members when the foreign secretary said his majesty's ships opened fire "in return" after they had been bombed.

The admiralty received a message from the British gunboat Bee saying the senior Japanese officer at Wuhu had ordered all shipping in the Yangtze river to remain stationary or it "would be fired on."

Despite the order, it was learned, the Bee planned to proceed down the river to pick up the Americans wounded when the United States gunboat Panay was shelled and sunk.

Japanese shelling yesterday of the British gunboat Ladybird pushed aside temporarily consideration by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Italy's fanfare in withdrawing from the league of nations Saturday.

A British seaman was dead and a British officer and seaman were wounded by the Japanese shells off Wuhu, China.

Eden was expected to outline the situation to the house of commons this afternoon.

Japanese Army Claims Occupation of Chinese Capital

The Japanese military command today announced the official occupation of Nanking, China's capital. Bloody street fighting, with Chinese contesting every foot of the Japanese advance, producing scenes like those above, marked the battle for the city, Japanese said.

However, they reported they took over government buildings which had housed Chinese machine gun nests and snipers.

Chinese sources, on the other hand, denied Japanese claims. They said they were still in communication with Nanking and that "heavy fighting is going on."

Bursan, who attempted to get his truck out of the way when the other car skidded on a curve, was not injured. Elbert Bursan, 22, his brother, riding with him, suffered a knee injury.

The impact overturned the truck and demolished the passenger car. The three men were still caught in the wreckage of their car when Mahoning Deputy Sheriff Steven Terlesky and John Risen arrived.

ONE YANKEE SEAMAN DIES IN BOMBING

Fifteen of 54 Survivors Aboard American Gunboat Injured As Ship Goes Down In Yangtze 25 Miles Above Nanking

TWO OIL COMPANY VESSELS SUNK

Japanese Navy Expresses Regret; Asserts Three Warplanes Opened Fire, Unable To See American Flags

(By Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, Dec. 13.—The Japanese navy tonight accepted full blame for the warplane bombardment and sinking of the United States gunboat Panay and two Standard Oil company ships, and avowed "profoundest regret" for the "terrible mistake."

One American seaman died of injuries from the bombardment by Japanese warplanes indiscriminately strafing all craft in the Yangtze about 25 miles above Nanking.

Fifteen of 54 survivors aboard the Panay were injured. Seventeen at first were reported missing, but advices by the British gunboat Bee said tonight that 12 Europeans had been sighted on the Yangtze river shore. They possibly were survivors of the Panay but definite confirmation was not at once forthcoming.

The Japanese flyers which bombed the ships, said Rear Admiral Tadao Honda, Japanese naval attaché in China, were unable to see the foreign flags and believed the craft to be Chinese.

This resulted in the "terrible mistake for which the Japanese navy feels profoundest regret," the admiral said.

Three naval aircraft participated in the attack, Admiral Honda said. "Feelings 'Turn to Sadness'"

"The flyers returned, proudly reporting achievement of the bombing of this concentration of ships," he continued. "But the feeling of accomplishment turned to regret and sadness when they learned their mistake."

The Japanese navy, he said, was preparing to punish those responsible for attacking the American craft. "Identity of the flyers naturally being known. Action will be taken after investigation."

Japanese, however, pleaded ignorance of most of the details of the attacks.

"The flyers didn't notice what happened after they observed their bombs found their objectives," it was explained.

Admiral Honda explained that the flyers were aware American and other foreign craft were "somewhere in the vicinity above Nanking," but were not aware of the specific location of the Panay and the others.

The attack occurred at 1:30 p. m. Sunday (12:30 a. m. Sunday E. S. T.)

Details Are Meager
Lights burned in the offices of Secretary Hull's assistants until nearly dawn, but details were meager concerning the sinking of the gunboat and two small Standard Oil vessels in the Yangtze river.

One message to the navy said the Panay's anti-aircraft guns were fired at the attacking airplane. Apparently, however, the shots did not find their mark.

Officials expressed the hope that further information would be forthcoming after the Panay's sister ship, the gunboat Oahu, and the British gunboat Bee arrive at the scene.

The state department was trying to check exactly the identity of the American refugees aboard the vessels when they were sunk. Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson called that three Italians and one British subject, in addition to a small group of Americans, were on the Panay.

One of the Italians, he said, was among 15 persons wounded. Some of them were severely injured, Johnson reported. He did not transmit the name of the sailor who was killed.

Word From Acheson
Johnson's information was received indirectly from George Acheson, Jr., second secretary at the American embassy in Nanking, who was aboard the Panay.

Acheson had been in charge of the Nanking embassy after the ambassador, Nelson T. Johnson, was shot down. He and other Americans had boarded the gunboat, however, when the fall of Nanking became imminent.

With him was J. Hall Paxton, 38, also an embassy secretary.

Lieut. Commander James J. Hughes, commanding the Panay, is widely known in Washington. He was married here in May, 1936, to Miss Katherine Brown, and next month was assigned to service in the far east.

Mrs. Hughes, 22, came to Washington from China a month ago. While she was enroute from Hankow to Canton, she had to walk four miles when bomb explosions tore out the railroad tracks.

Report Stolen Loot Is Recovered Here
Alliance police came to Salem Sunday and recovered a quantity of merchandise stored in a barn on Third st., by Howard T. Harrison, 25, of Alliance, following Harrison's alleged confession to Police Chief H. L. Stark of Alliance that he had broken into numerous parked automobiles in Alliance recently.

Besides the loot taken from the barn here, owned by a relative, other articles were found at Harrison's residence in Alliance on East Patterson st. The defendant is held on a suspicion charge at present.

Six Rebel Convicts In 'Solitary' Today
COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 13.—Six desperate convicts who slew their hostage, the captain of the state penitentiary guards, after defying a dramatic, two-hour plea to surrender by Governor Olin D. Johnson, were thrown into "solitary" today to await an early trial.

Sheriff T. Alex Hesse announced that William B. Woods, 24-year-old highway robber, confessed he was the one who stabbed the 61-year-old guard captain, Olin Sanders, yesterday before the convicts were routed from Sanders' office by national guardsmen hurling tear gas shells.

COOPERATING ON COOPERATION

Every time the United States has a particularly tough problem to solve, as it has at present in discovering the causes of the "recession" and removing them, there is a fresh call for cooperation.

This happened in the first days of the Roosevelt administration. It is happening again now. But how to cooperate? That is the question.

Cooperation, in the sense that Americans have in mind, is collective action for the common well-being of the nation. There must be, therefore, a common objective before there can be cooperation.

In the present case, the common objective is prosperity—prosperity for all. So far so good. All the United States lacks is a common basis for collective action.

This has been revealed more clearly than usual in the recent proposals advanced by business spokesmen, who say the basis for collective action to advance the nation's well-being should be faith in the traditional operation of private capitalism. What they mean is that political attacks on private capitalism are hampering recovery. Government and business must decide whether the nation is going to be socialist or capitalist. It can't be both.

The Saturday Evening Post, which holds this view, said recently: "There are times when it is hard to tell from Mr. Roosevelt's tone whether he thinks of himself as the president of a nation or the commander in chief in a civil war."

There is a situation here which must be cleared up before the country can hope to get past the conversational stage of cooperation. Americans must agree on what methods they favor to work out their economic destiny, which they agree should be that of the world's highest standard of living. They cannot cooperate without first establishing a basis of faith.

PURCHASING MORE AUTHORITY

Passage by the house of representatives of a farm bill it doesn't want, to distribute money the government doesn't have, for a purpose which farmers don't understand proves there must be a Santa Claus.

The house passed the bill because politicians don't dare to vote against farm relief. There can be no question of right or wrong in such a case. Sponsors of such legislation proclaim it will be good for the farmer and presto! it goes on the books.

It goes on the books because American political morality has degenerated to the extent that payment of subsidies to pressure groups is more important than the reasons for paying them.

There may be some good things in the farm bill the house has passed; if so, members of the house of representatives haven't learned about them. The same situation exists in the senate, where passage of a similar bill now seems certain.

The senate bill and the house bill will be fitted together. The ultimate result will be to furnish farmers with upward of a billion dollars a year in return for their cooperation in reducing the national food supply, boosting prices of farm products and slipping their own necks into the halter of bureaucracy.

It would be cheaper in the long run for consumers to give farmers the money outright, thereby preventing politicians from using it to purchase more authority for themselves by pretending the subsidies came from them, instead of from all the millions who must eat to live.

NOTE ON THE BUDGET

Addition of 350,000 persons to WPA employment rolls will add $23,000,000 a month to the rate of federal relief spending, which has been at an average of about $100,000,000 a month since last July 1. Further increases will be made later, no doubt.

This is a marginal note on the condition of the budget. Continuation of the business recession, the note says, will make a balanced budget impossible this year, next year and all other years.

New dealers argue that hide-bound conservatives make a fetish of balancing the budget, to the extent of putting dollars above the welfare of human beings. Perhaps conservatives do talk about it too much, but there is one thing to remember: Without the conservatives, the liberals wouldn't have an opportunity to practice their art.

If the budget had not been balanced and if the national debt had not been reduced between the end of the World war and the beginning of the depression, the government would not have been able to plunge into debt without thinking first of the effect on its credit.

Its credit was good at the beginning of this decade. Its credit still is good today. But it is not as good now as it was in 1930 and it will not be as good in 1940 as it is now, unless the government proves it is able to reduce expenditures as well as to increase them. Finance is still the ultimate test of government.

THE STARS SAY

For Tuesday, December 14

A very lively and exciting day is forecast from the predominant planetary configurations. This may be in connection with a sudden disruption in the affairs, involving removal, change, travel and new interests and associations. There may be much benefit from new contracts, agreements or writings and there should be surprising culminations in the private life. But be discreet.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of great excitement and commotion, with change, journeys or removals in connection with advantageous new contracts or agreements. Writings, publicity and promotion should flourish. The purely private life also should have its reactions and adventures, but be discreet in these.

A child born on this day may be very talented in an original and outstanding way, although it may be restless, wayward and given to change, adventure and innovation.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—Diary: Up and talking to Ethel Roche who is leaving shortly for a cruise around the world, lucky lady. And Mrs. Henry Fonda called with the autograph book of a brave invalid girl in California. And came a comical note from Maury Paul, the newspapers' Cholly Knickerbocker.

Too, a letter from John T. McCutcheon which I cherish. This day I decided to subscribe for the Manchester Guardian after reading one of its exquisite editorials describing a country lane after a shower. Then over to the Waldorf bar and sat with Henry Sell awhile.

Out to dinner and came upon Dick Berlin and Dr. A. J. Cronin, the London pamphleteer who authored the deservedly best selling "The Citadel." And there was prattle-prattle of Hollywood, medicos and the charm of an English Spring. And I was struck with Dr. Cronin's resemblance to Sinclair Lewis, sandy hair and all.

Al Woods' haven for the stage struck—The Woods Academy of Modern Acting—opens at a time of waning interest in the stage and a pronounced eagerness to trek to the Hollywood studios. Al is a noble old Roman who believes flesh and blood performances will never die and launched his school in the 40's to prove it. He began with the Bowers hair-raisers and came up gradually to the elite audiences of Broadway. Unquestionably, he is dean of the melodrama.

While Woods snaffled sizeable fortunes out of several hand-picked stars, his biggest gold mine was in the jovial commonness of the so-called bedroom farce. Their ribaldry seemed pretty hot a few years ago but today would not lift the most sensitive eyebrow. They dish out rarer stuff these days camouflaged as high art. "Amphitryon 38," for instance. As I recall Al Woods' biggest money making star was Julian Eltinge, for whom he named a theatre.

Personal nomination for the most adroit coverupper of fumbles on the radio—Fred Allen.

When Gil Boag—and where is he now?—occupied the shaky throne as Broadway's night club king, he had no rivals, no pretenders. But today the throne is divided among the roving-eyed Sherman Billingsley, the dresy Jack Kriender and poker-faced John Perona, proprietors of the Stork, "No. 21" and El Morocco respectively. Each struggles valiantly to capture and hold the mercurial crowds that enjoy greeting down with a hiccup. Billingsley gives favorite patrons $2.50 gold piece lucky charms, Perona bestows costly mufflers and vanities, and Kriender if need be, will give them his shirt. One week The Stork will be the magnet of nocturnal attraction, the next "No. 21," and still the next El Morocco, and so on, round and round. Until one day, as it will happen, someone with a new location and a new flock of ideas, wins the charmed circle. Nothing dies off so quickly as the popularity of a night club. For example: Montmartre, Tom Healy's at 66th, Bustanoby's Domino Room, Palais Royal, The Little Club and those Mayfair Saturday nights. And the once packed French Casino, which closed the other week over night.

Bagatelles: Herbert Johnson, the political cartoonist, and the late Clare Briggs went through school together in Lincoln, Neb. . . . Achmed Abdullah's Hollywood address is The Garden of Allah Hotel . . . Maurice Chevalier now and then serves an all-bean dinner to friends—kidney bean cocktail, black bean soup, baked pork and beans, string bean salad and such . . . Anthony Eden, painfully emaciated, is putting on poundage with milk and olive oil. From a feature story: "Despite his years on Park avenue, McIntyre does not know one tea from another."

Is that so? There's store tea and sassafras.

HALITOSIS

"Fetor ex ore" sounds like a horrid affliction, and, to the victim, it is indeed such an affliction. This is Latin for ill-smelling breath, or what's universally known nowadays as "halitosis."

Many who suffer from halitosis seem unable to get rid of it. This is the case because they fail to locate the real cause.

There is almost a universal belief that halitosis can only be caused by faulty teeth. It is true, of course, that foul breath can very often be traced to decayed teeth or diseased gums. It may be produced by the decomposition of particles of food which lodge and remain between the teeth. It may be caused by an unclean dental plate, or bridge-work which makes a harboring place for fermenting food.

But do not overlook the fact that halitosis may follow infection located elsewhere than in the teeth.

It may be the result of enlarged and infected tonsils. It may come from an unclean tongue, a tongue carrying much offensive material. At times it is due to some upset in the digestive system. This is a common cause.

Other Sources

A foul odor may arise from disease in the wind-pipe, food-pipe or even in the lungs. The persistence of any foul odor from the mouth should immediately arouse suspicion of ill health. Never regard it as something trivial and merely embarrassing.

Under normal circumstances the breath has a faint odor resembling blooming chestnut trees. Any change from this is a sign of disease. It may be located at the level of the mouth, or it may come from any portion below this. At times it may be necessary to have a thorough x-ray examination of the entire intestinal tract.

Some individuals show no defect whatever, even after a thorough examination. But by careful questioning the disorder usually can be traced to faulty eating hours, with hasty and inadequate chewing of the food, or to inadequate hours of rest and relaxation. The sufferer from nervous indigestion frequently has halitosis as a symptom.

It will be seen that halitosis may follow one of many, many disorders. In order to remove it, every corrective measure must be taken and every effort made to improve the health and hygiene of the body.

Answers to Health Queries
Mrs. H. Q.—Will you please outline a diet for colitis. I have an irritable colon and suffer with "gas." Also am very restless at night.

A.—Such a diet should exclude all the coarser, harsher foods. For full particulars, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

SINCLAIR TEST SYSTEM PROVED

Satisfied Motorists Indicate Constant Research Makes Better Products

There are many motorists who, unthinkingly, drive to any gasoline pump and say, "Fill 'er up!"

The kind of gasoline makes no difference, apparently.

Yet any qualified automobile mechanic and hundreds of drivers will say there is much difference in gasolines, or, more properly, motor fuel.

The Sinclair Oil company has made countless tests to blend a motor fuel that has starting qualities and give more power without fouling the motor. As new type motors are developed, they make more tests. Nothing is left to chance. They demand a motor fuel that is 100 per cent effective.

Exactly the same method is used with their oils and greases, each compounded to meet a different need.

You want perfect motor performance. You can have it by using Sinclair products.

LOTS OF ROOM HERE

PASSENGERS who step into the 1937 Ford V-8 sedan will find plenty of room to reach the rear compartment without crowding, as the result of the adoption of a novel front seat design. The seat cushion is full width but the seat back is divided. When either section is tilted forward it also swings inward due to diagonal hinging. This provides a wide passageway on either side between the seat back and the car wall, through which passengers can step into the rear without crowding. This seat design, believed to be new in the industry, enhances the practicability of the Tudor model.

HAINAN'S DOES IT'S PART, TOO

Takes at Least One Job—That of Cooking—Out of Hands of Christmas Shoppers

It is the Christmas season, indeed, with its hustle and its bustle, its excitement and its thrills, and all its varied activities.

But no matter how many things we must get done, how many gifts we have to buy yet, nor how many errands there are to perform, still we must eat.

So, with so many other things to be accomplished and apparently so little time to do them, why not make eating a pleasure instead of one more task.

Hainan's has invited shoppers to make this restaurant their headquarters where they may pause for a moment, enjoy a well earned rest and obtain the nourishment and pleasure which come from home-cooked food.

HOW ABOUT CAR AS A PRESENT

Entire Family Will Find That Christmas and the Entire Year Will Be Merry

There are many ways to say "Merry Christmas," but there are some especially that will delight every member of the family and will continue to make the entire family merry throughout the year.

This thought was expressed today by F. W. Woodward, sales manager for the Harris Garage & Storage, local distributor for DeSoto and Plymouth automobiles.

He asked, "Can you think of anything that gives the pleasure to the entire family, day after day, than a good automobile?"

"It does not have to be a new car. But it's the pleasure of going places and doing things a car makes possible, regardless of whether it's new or used."

"Have you ever considered the dozens of smaller gifts that are given, the combined cost of which would be money aplenty to make the purchase of a car possible?"

WOMEN DRIVERS LIKE CHRYSLER

Reports From Auto Shows All Over Country Reveal Praise for New Models

Reports from the big automobile shows all over the country indicate that women motorists are receiving the 1938 Chrysler with unprecedented enthusiasm, according to J. G. Smith, Chrysler dealer here.

"Acceptance of the new Chrysler by feminine motorists has been a feature of all the shows held this fall," says Mr. Smith. "They have found many aids to their comfort and convenience and much to attract the eye, proving that our designers and stylists have correctly interpreted women's tastes and preferences in motor cars, just as they have been doing throughout the years we have been in business."

Praise Exterior Lines

"The beauty of our new exterior lines has won much favorable comment, as has the improved appearance of the interiors. Women like the sleek, swanky, volute sweep of hood, fenders and body. They approve of the fine upholstery fabrics and the tasteful color combinations."

The newly-designed instrument panel and hardware elicit much favorable comment. One feature that seems to be making a particular hit is the recessing of all control knobs so that there are no protuberances to catch the clothing or serve as a possible source of danger in the event of a sudden stop.

"Soft rubber arm rests, padded seat backs and door handles that are curved inward to avoid sharp points are recognized as definite safety adjuncts. Our wide doors, permitting easy entrance and egress, are appreciated as means of avoiding soiling or musing the clothing."

Comfortable Seats

"The deep, wide, chair-height seats have a strong appeal for feminine drivers, too. Our new front seat is adjustable to the comfort of the petite type of women. As the seat is moved forward, it also is raised, giving a comfortable position and enabling the brake and clutch pedals to be reached easily by persons of short stature. Seats are of the height of the average chair, which means an easy and restful ride."

"Still another feature that is appealing strongly to women is the removal of the parking brake lever from the floor. Placed under the dash, the pistol grip handle is easily reached, and at the same time additional room is provided in the driver's compartment."

"The list of standard color combinations offered this year is an unusually attractive one, reflecting the most careful thought and investigation on the part of our color engineers. Throughout the country, women have commented on these beautiful and tasteful colors, whose variety is sufficient to insure pleasing almost any individual."

HAVE CLEANERS CALL REGULARLY

Set a Day Each Week: Paris Driver Will Stop Whether You Have Order or Not

Every clever wife knows she must "peep" now and then to be sure his clothes are looking their best.

Men seem to be careless, not intentionally, of course, but often when it's time to dress for one of these holiday events, the "Missus" may have to give him the final "once-over" to be sure everything's as it should be.

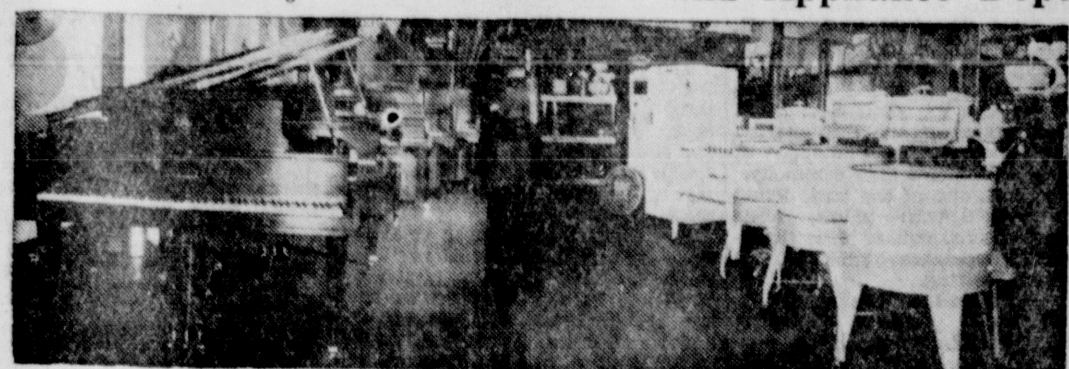

Every man, of course, wants to look his best, but none can unless his clothing is spotlessly clean and perfectly pressed. It's embarrassing, indeed, to find at the last minute that something's wrong.

An economical plan—one that works every time, is to telephone 710 and instruct the Paris Cleaners to call each week at some stated day for your garments. Then, if any are in need of attention, there is no possibility of having them overlooked.

The Paris driver will call at regular intervals, even if he doesn't get something every time.

It's part of the perfect service afforded by Paris Cleaners.

Yule Gifts From Finley Music Co. Give Pleasure and Value All the Year

There approaches a season of the year which seems to epitomize all the happy reactions of man — a festive and a joyous time; and, as well—a sacred period, signaling, as it were, the beginning of another era.

Music, beautiful and inspiring, so aptly expresses the theme of the season; because it is and has been since time eternal the means of an expression beyond mere words.

Great Educational Force

So at this time of the year it is not unnatural for the thoughts to turn to music in its varied forms. Music is not a professional but a great educational force necessary to development. The former Dr. Charles W. Elliott, late president of Harvard University, said: "Music rightly taught is the best mind trainer on the list."

Doing it right has been the primary objective of the Finley Music Co., S. Broadway, one of eastern Ohio's leading musical stores, for many years.

Today the Finley Music Co. enjoys a reputation for merchandise and service which is unsurpassed.

The handling of quality merchandise has been a watchword with the Finley Music Co. They have, for instance, the Baldwin piano, known for over 73 years, with its modern factories, skilled scientists and outstanding reputation.

Finleys can show you now how easy it is to own an up-to-date instrument. This, too, may well apply to any other musical instrument.

Many Appliances

Finleys handle the RCA Victor and Philco radios.

Finley Music Co., also handles and distributes all Westinghouse Electric appliances, refrigerators, washers, irons and all small appliances.

The new 1938 Westinghouse refrigerator with the new humidifier is now on display.

Through the Finley Music Co., it is possible to give your child the musical education he desires and needs, at an extremely low cost.

Many children and adults have been started on a musical education under some of the finest teachers obtainable. Many others have been directed to competent teachers in their own neighborhood. All of which proves the Finley school performs a real service for the community.

The Finley Music Co., is now conducting its annual pre-Christmas store-wide sale. And values are greater than ever, according to R. B. Finley, store manager.

Miss Chatfield Is Bride At Beautiful Home Wedding

One of the most beautiful weddings of the season was that of Miss Joyce Chatfield to Lionel R. Smith at the bride's home on Brooklyn ave., Saturday.

Forty guests attended the ceremony at 4 p. m. when Rev. R. D. Walter, pastor of the Presbyterian church, heard the exchange of vows in the double ring ceremony.

The south end of the large living room, banked with palms, ferns and evergreens, lighted with three-branch candelabra, provided an attractive setting.

Musical Program

A musical program, including favorite melodies of the bride, preceded the ceremony. Miss Anna Cook, organist of the Presbyterian church, played "Liebestraume" and Miss Ella Louise Ferney, Columbus, college classmate of the bride, sang, "Beloved, It Is Morn'g."

Louis Snipes played a clarinet solo, "Ave Maria" by Schubert. John Paul O'Leary sang "Because." Miss Anna Cook was accompanist.

The Wagner wedding march was played as the wedding party descended the stairs, with Mendelssohn's wedding air at the close of the ceremony.

The bride was beautiful in a lace-trimmed, close-fitting white satin gown, fashioned with high neck, long, tight fitting sleeves and short train. She wore a finger-length veil with pearl tulle, and carried an arm bouquet of bridal roses.

Miss Chatfield was given in marriage by her father, Henry P. Chatfield, Mrs. Charles Chatfield of Mount Vernon, N. Y., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Charles Chatfield, the bride's brother, was best man.

Mrs. Chatfield, mother of the bride, wore an afternoon dress of mahogany brown velvet and Mrs. Smith, mother of the groom, wore a gown of royal blue velvet. Their corsages were of Tullis roses.

Immediately following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served at a charmingly appointed table in the dining room. While candles in crystal candelabra stood at either side of a large wedding cake in the center of the table, bronze chrysanthemums and white candles were used in other decorations for the room.

Miss Jean Gallatin presided at the table while Mrs. Chatfield, matron of honor, acted as hostess, assisted by little Winnie Spore of East Liverpool, sister of one of the bridesmaids.

On Trip to New York

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left at 6 p. m. for a wedding trip to New York City. They will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chatfield in Mount Vernon, before returning here.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Smith of East Fourth st. A graduate of Ohio State university, he is associated with his father in the operation of the Smith Creamery company. Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Wayne Morris, Frank McHugh and Doris Weston have the leading roles. While O'Brien and Morris are fighting about her, Miss Weston marries Regis Toomey, a pal of theirs. One week after the marriage Toomey is killed while testing a submarine. Miss Weston then gets a job in the navy department at San Diego.

Called On Carpet

During a trip, Morris' carelessness causes an accident to the submarine they are on and Brent, lieutenant commander in charge of the sub, is called on the carpet. O'Brien, who worships his commander, is angered because Brent had to take a dressing down because of an accident caused by Morris and after an argument with the latter, they have a fight. Morris, angered, determines to get O'Brien's job away from him, which he does.

Brent and Morris and the submarine are ordered to sea. On the trip they take along an invention Brent and O'Brien had perfected to effect rescue of crews from the bottom of the ocean. The sub is rammed and sunk to the bottom. Brent and Morris are the only ones left after they have helped the crew to escape through the regulation escape device they seem doomed because there is no one to work the escape valve. However, the new invention saves them.

The State theater presents Edward G. Robinson in the starring role of "The Last Gangster," showing tonight and Tuesday.

"Little Caesar" has the support of James Stewart, Rose Stradner, Lionel Stander, Douglas Scott, John Carradine and Sidney Blackmer.

Married and Jailed

Robinson as a public enemy is sent to prison by the federal government for 10 years. His conviction comes shortly after his marriage to a lovely European girl, Miss Stradner, whom he has married for the express purpose of becoming the father of a son.

When the child is born and it is a son, the gangster tries to convince the warden against holding him, a "big shot," in prison. He then begins to see that his own importance was only an illusion. His wife, an innocent girl barely able to speak English, believes him a victim of circumstances and often visits him with the child, whom Robinson adores. When she finds out what he is, she divorces him.

A reporter who befriended her, James Stewart, has fallen in love with her and she marries him. The reporter adopts the boy, who grows up ignorant of his real father's identity. When Robinson's term is up, he is released.

up he emerges from prison determined to kill the girl.

His old gang beats him up to make him tell where he hid the wealth which disappeared when he entered prison. The boy refuses to acknowledge him as his father but takes him home. Robinson realizes that the boy is much better off as he is and leaves without harming the mother or the foster father.

A last survivor of a rival gang Robinson wiped out years before comes upon him and wounds him. Robinson dies after killing the other gangster.

"Beauty's A Charm" by HARRIET HINSDALE

CHAPTER XXVI

Ames regarded Lucy Lee with unaltered gravity. Leaning forward, he placed his hand over hers, lying white and thin on the satin coverlet of the bed. He noticed the blue shadows in the hollows of her wrists, and the whiteness of her eyes.

"That's one thing I came to talk to you about, Lucy Lee," he said. "You mean—Pearl?"

"Yeah—and our friend Neville Preston. You mustn't let it get you down, darling. When I saw you were going for him, I wanted to give you the tip-off but honest, I didn't have the heart. I thought it would dawn on you gradually what was going on between them. Instead of kayoing you like it did, I got the whole story out of Pearl about what happened that night in camp and it was a tough break for you, kid. But at that, I guess you're some to the good. At least you don't think Preston is a little too good, any more!"

Lucy Lee's reply was without bitterness. "Nothing matters very much these days, except Daddy Carter and Juddy. I don't want them hurt by all this, too. What am I going to do about Daddy Carter? Has he got to know?"

"Pearl says she will go ahead and get a divorce on mental cruelty or what have you, if that is O. K. by your father. If I were in his socks I'd be tickled pink to let her go. Pearl's a hot potato for any man to hold very long!"

Lucy Lee sighed with relief. "I'm so thankful he won't have to be told the truth. It's been worrying me terribly."

"All you have to worry about now is getting on your feet again, Gorgeous." He smiled, patting her hand. "Beauty Wins Health Battle—and all that."

"You're only trying to cheer me up, Don, and it's mighty sweet of you. But you know as well as I do that I'm through in pictures."

"What d'ya mean—through? You're tussy, Sister. Look at the odds who have had accidents—or worse events and been laid up for months. But they're back in pictures and going stronger than ever, aren't they?"

"Yes, but they wanted to come back. I don't. I never belonged in pictures, anyway. Oh, I was carried away by all the glitter and thrill, of course. Any girl would have been, I suppose. But I realize now I could never be much of an actress and since the studio isn't going to renew my contract—"

"Have they notified you?" Ames asked quickly.

"This morning," Lucy Lee replied quietly.

"Why the dirty so-and-so?"

"I don't blame them. Reckon I'm a total loss as far as they are concerned. And it's isn't likely that any other studio will want to sign me up. Too many beauty-prize winners arriving every day," she added with a whimsical smile, infinitely more pathetic than tears.

"Bunk," said the press agent reassuringly. "You've got 'em all stopped, when it comes to looks!"

"I read yesterday that 'Miss Parisian Toilettes' is in Hollywood and Supreme will probably sign her up to the six months' contract. Funny, isn't it?"

The publicity man grinned sheepishly. "That's just a lotta applesauce about the Supreme contract," he said.

"How do you know?"

"Because I wrote the item myself, Angel Face. 'Parisian Toilettes' has hired me as her personal representative." He chuckled. "Isn't that a honey? I ask you."

"You mean, you're handling publicity for her?" Lucy Lee exclaimed in surprise.

"Sure," he grinned. "Back in Atlantic City she had her eye on the pictures; so I told her to get in touch with me if she came to the Coast."

"Do you know what I want more than anything in the world?" She changed the subject dreamily. "I want to go back home... to Rosemead. Forget everything that's happened to me here." Her voice broke and tears welled up slowly.

He patted her hand again, smiling cheerfully. "Don't be like that, Lucy Lee. You'll feel different when you're up and around again. There'll be some good breaks after the tough ones—bound to be. So cheerio."

She shook her head. "I simply don't care enough, any more, Don. It's queer, maybe. But that's the way I am, I reckon."

"Is it because of what happened to Clyde Dixon you feel this way?" Ames asked awkwardly, sympathy making him self-conscious. "I know he was crazy about you. I stuck out all over him. And he was a regular guy, too. Anybody could see that."

"He was the finest boy in the world," she said softly. "And if it hadn't been for me, he wouldn't have got killed. Don't you see? I blame myself for his death. He would never have come here at all—except for me." She began to sob brokenheartedly.

Don Ames became stern, paternal. "Now, listen to me, Lucy Lee. That's a lotta boloney, blaming yourself. He came of his own free will, didn't he? How do you know what might have happened if he had stayed down there at home?"

Ames rose abruptly and walked to the balcony rail. Feminine tears made him uncomfortable. What could a fellow say? Here was this kid breaking her heart over a boy she loved and making herself believe she was guilty of his death. A swell situation to try to talk her out of.

"Don't sweetheart," he said at last, coming back to her. "I wish to God I could straighten things out for you. I swallowed the lump in his throat but it would not down."

Lucy Lee's sobs died away and she managed a wan little smile. "I'm sorry, Don. Didn't mean to break down on you like this and never ever do it again. You're a real friend—the only one I got in Hollywood, I guess. I'm all right now—see, not crying any more."

"Attagirl," He stooped suddenly and placed a brotherly kiss on her wet cheek. "Take care of yourself, kid. I'll be seen' you soon." He started toward the door, then turned and came back to the bed. "And by the way, how's the old bank roll holding out, huh? Need any sugar?"

She shook her head, smiling through her tears. "No thanks, Don. But it's nice of you to think of it. My pay check from the studio will be coming in for another month."

"Well, I knew Pearl had run up a whale of a lot of bills—"

"I'm going to pay them off if possible—"

"Don't let them worry you. Maybe I can make Pearl see the light and come across, the way she should. Now that she's through with the Carter family, the least she can do is foot the bills she ran up herself. What you need is a financial manager and I hereby appoint myself it," he grinned.

"What a grand person you are, Don. I reckon I do need one. What I hope is that there will be enough left to take Daddy Carter and Juddy and me back to Rosemead." She hesitated, then went on. "And fix the roof."

"What d'ya mean, fix the roof?"

"Don't you remember? At first, that was what I was going to do with the money I earned. Fix the old house up and put on a new roof. It leaks, you know," she added seriously.

"Sure, I remember," he chuckled. "Well, good gosh, we ought to be able to do that much. Leave it to your financial manager, Lucy Lee. His shoulders are broad—the way the tailor has this coat padded." The days passed and the weeks.

And still Lucy Lee made no effort to walk. She was in no pain and never complained. Simply lay there—quiet, gentle, sweet. The great surgeon, Dr. Hale, pronounced the healing process complete and perfect. There was no physical reason why the patient could not take those first tentative steps from bedside to chair which would prove the beginning of normal locomotion. It was only that the mental urge was lacking, as Dr. Hale explained to Wakefield Carter and Ames.

"Not an uncommon manifestation of what I call spiritual hysteria, gentlemen, but exceedingly difficult to get at by ordinary means. Because the reasons for the failure of the desire to walk are so deep seated and often obscure."

"I get you," Don Ames broke in thoughtfully. "Lucy Lee's legs are perfectly okay, and the old spine too. She can walk, just as soon as she wants to bad enough. The trouble is, she doesn't want to. It just isn't worth while—the way her subconscious mind has it doped out. There's nothing she cares enough about to walk for. Am I right?"

The famous surgeon smiled. "Quite. And very clearly put, Mr. Ames."

"But my God, Doc. Something has got to be done. The way the kid lies there—not caring about a damn thing—gets my goat."

"Mine too, I assure you, Mr. Ames," the surgeon rejoined. "Yet we must move with the most extreme caution. Great harm is sometimes done in cases of this type by too hasty or ill-advised measures. A mental shock is no doubt necessary to waken the dormant wish for physical action. But the wrong remedy may do more harm than good. Much more harm."

From her bed near the balcony doors Lucy could look out over Hollywood and much of Los Angeles, flung like a multicolored and intricately patterned carpet over the floor of the rolling plain between mountains and sea.

It was an outlook to stir the pulses. Yet to Lucy Lee it was nothing but a place from which she longed to escape, though even escape was not worth the effort of trying to rise from the bed upon which she lay. So much easier to lie here, sheltered from present reality, and allow one's thoughts to wander back to the dreams which was the past.

Rosemead... the stately old house she loved... moon-drenched gardens of tangled, fragrant bloom... perhaps in the distance the mellow voices of negroes singing the songs their fathers had sung on the old plantation. An ardent boy who had always been part of the picture—

It was on these things that Lucy Lee's mind dwelt.

BUDGE RANKED NO. 1 ATHLETE OF PAST YEAR

Tennis Champion Given Big Majority In Sports Poll

(Note: This is the first of a series analyzing the seventh annual Associated Press sports poll. It covers replies on the rating of outstanding performers, among men, in any sport, during 1937.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Red-headed John Donald Budge, who carried the tennis torch so blazingly for Uncle Sam, rates well off by himself as the No. 1 athlete of the year, in the opinion of the nation's leading sports writing experts.

For his championship exploits at Wimbledon and Forest Hills, topped off by playing the star role in recapture of the historic Davis cup, the lanky Californian received a thumping majority vote in the seventh annual Associated Press sports poll.

Now the world's No. 1 tennis player but not even mentioned in last year's poll, Budge was put at the top of the all-sports list by 28 out of 48 experts in recognition of his highly-dramatic achievements. He totaled 95 points under the 3-2-1 system of scoring for the three entries posted by each contributor to the poll.

Chief contenders for the runner-up honors were those two major league rivals for all-around honors, outfielders Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals and Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees. Medwick finally outpointed the Yankee sophomore, 39 to 35, but each received three first-place votes and the margin was not enough to settle an argument that raged all year between their partisans.

Yale's Clint Frank and Colorado's Whizzer White, All-America backfield stars of 1937, shared the chief honors awarded gridiron heroes. Frank took fourth place with 28 points but he had only two votes for first place to White's four.

Ralph Guldahl, the United States open champion, led all golfing rivals in the polls. Henry Armstrong, the busy featherweight fistic champion, achieved distinction by getting more voting support than Joe Louis, the heavyweight titleholder. Each received two first-place nominations but Armstrong led on points, 11 to 9.

Here are the tabulated results: Performer and points—Don Budge, world tennis champion, 95.

Joe Medwick, St. Louis Cardinals outfielder and National league batting champion, 39.

Joe DiMaggio, Yankees' outfielder and major league home run champion, 35.

Clinton E. Frank, Yale All-America halfback, 28.

Byron (Whizzer) White, Colorado All-America back, 15.

Henry Armstrong, world featherweight champion, 11.

Ralph Guldahl, U. S. open golf champion, 11.

Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion, 9.

Charley Gehring, Detroit second baseman and American League batting champion, 7.

Marshall Goldberg, Pitt All-America halfback, 4.

Three points each: Dutch Clark, Detroit Lions' pro quarterback; Sam Snead, pro golfer; and Johnny Goodman, U. S. amateur golf champion.

Two points each: Don Lash, National cross-country running champion; Jim Turner, Boston Red Sox' freshman pitching ace; Capt. George Eyston, British holder of new land speed record; Frankie Parker, Davis cup tennis player; Bill De Correvont, Chicago school-boy football sensation; Archie San Romani (Emporia, Kan.) miler; and Lefty Gomez, Yankee southpaw.

Previous poll winners are: 1931, Pepper Martin, St. Louis Cardinals outfielder; 1932, Gene Sarazen, British and U. S. open golf champion; 1933, Carl Hubbell, Giants' southpaw ace; 1934, Dizzy Dean, Cardinals' pitching star; 1935, Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing sensation; 1936, Jesse Owens, triple Olympic track and field winner.

Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., the 54-hole leader with 209 after yesterday's par-shooting round—led the charge but it was Thomson, who cracked the course record with a 65, to whom the galleries looked.

Cope Brothers, Bill And Ben, Are Prominent Members Of Mount Union Basketball Quintet

BILL COPE

Salem Cagers To Appear In Starting Lineup Tonight

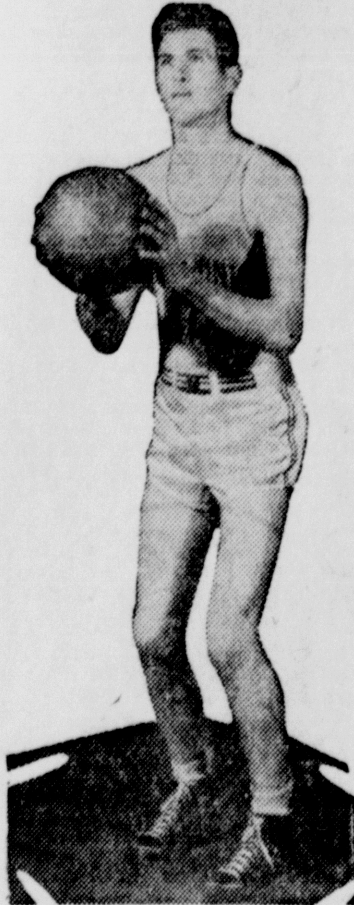

ALLIANCE, Dec. 13.—Meet the brothers, Bill and Ben Cope of Salem, varsity members of Mount Union College's 1937-38 basketball squad.

The four letter last name gives Ohio Conference coaches a sinking feeling in the pits of their stomachs every time it is mentioned. For three years Bob Cope, big brother of the two boys now wearing the purple, ran rampant on the hardwoods of Ohio.

This looks like a big year for the Cope family at Mount Union. Bill is a senior and Ben a junior. Two years ago when Bill was a sophomore he played only part of the time for that year Coach Bob Wright had eight veterans on his squad. Last year was really Bill's first year of competition. The same holds for Ben. Last year as a sophomore he started nearly every game, saw lots of action, and is now anxious for the second year to get under way.

At a large number of schools a man can start right in without that valuable year of experience. However, at Mount Union Coach Bob Wright has a system which the players have had some experience. Wright's system of play is known as the most successful in the Buckeye state and possibly the nation.

Bill Weaver of East Liverpool, Jack Mills of Youngstown, and Gordon Scott of Norwalk are the other starters.

Mike Linder set the scoring pace for the Salem lads, tallying 11 points on four field goals and three free throws.

Salem trailed at halftime, 16-13, but a third quarter scoring spree placed the local lads out in front, 25 to 23. Cleveland was held to four points in the final period while Salem counted eight.

Jo Adams and Anne Zelle led the Salem girls to their win with Miss Adams scoring 12 points and Miss Zelle nine. The local lassies held a big lead throughout the contest after piling up 20 points in the first half.

par and started the final drive a single stroke back of Revolta, who ground out a steady 70 to stay on top.

The 65 was a stroke better than the previous record, set in 1935 by Ted Turner of Pine Valley, N. J., and equaled last year by Lawson Little of San Francisco.

Also close on Revolta's heels was Dick Metz of Chicago, whose 67 projected him into the thick of the fight. He, like Thomson, had 210 at the three-quarter mark.

Samuel Jackson Snead—Sluggin' Sam of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.—was still very much in the running at 211.

Horton Smith of Chicago, whose tournament record of 231—set in 1935—appeared almost certain to fall today, remained in striking position at 213.

BAUGH PASSES REDSKIN TEAM TO PRO TITLE

"Slingin' Sam" Hailed As Greatest Passer of All Time

By EARL HULLIGAN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Professional football doffed its helmet today to "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh.

Older and long-established stars of the gridiron's toughest class—the National Professional league—paid tribute to the youth whose passing performance yesterday stamped him the greatest aerial marksman in the game.

Earl ("Dutch") Clark, Detroit Lions' brilliant playing coach, and Ray Flaherty, Washington coach, agreed that Baugh's passing in Washington's 28 to 21 victory over the Chicago Bears for the championship "was the greatest one-man show ever put on by professional football."

There's a story behind the sensational rise of the Texas youth as the most brilliant freshman ever to crack the pro league ranks. It's the story of a boy who'd much rather run with the ball than hurl a touchdown pass, but who once he knew he could throw a football, was determined to throw it better than anyone else.

All one summer before his sophomore year at Texas Christian, Baugh practiced throwing footballs at an old tree he hung from a tree in the backyard of his Sweetwater, Texas, home.

Yesterday, some 15,000 fans saw the result of those long hours of drilling as Baugh pitched three spectacular touchdown passes which ran the Bears dizzy and the league pennant up the Redskins flagpole.

Washington scored first on a smash by Cliff Battles, with Baugh's short passes setting the stage. The Bears tied the count on Mander's 10-yard smash and went ahead late in the first half of the touchdown pass from Bernie Masterson to Mander. Then, after a comparatively dull second period in which Mander twice missed long field goals, Baugh went to work.

He passed 20 yards to Wayne Millner, who ran 35 yards to score. The Bears came back to go ahead on a short touchdown pass from Masterson to Mankie, but Baugh enabled the Redskins to tie the score when he passed 28 yards to Millner, who ran 55 yards to score. The winning touchdown came late in the third stanza, Baugh hurling a 20-yard aerial to Ed Justice, who scampered 15 yards over the Bears' goal line.

Baugh hurled 34 passes, making good on half of them for a total gain of 332 yards. In addition, he ran well when called on and played a big part in ruining a last-period aerial attack by the Bears.

Louis To Watch Schmeling Meet Tune-Up For Tonight

Heavyweight Champion To Search For Weak Spot In Fighter Who Once Whipped Him

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The situation is going to be all reversed tonight when Herr Max Schmeling, the mighty hunter, climbs into the Madison Square Garden ring for 15 rounds or less with rugged Harry Thomas.

This time Joe Louis, the champ, is going to be sitting there with his sleepy eyes glued on the proceedings—hoping to "see something" important. He would like to locate a leak in Schmeling's 32-year-old armor.

It would be only fair if he did, because Max, you will recall, sat there in the shadows a couple of winters ago and "saw something" nobody else had even suspected while Louis, the youngster, was smushing old Paulino Uzcudun out of the fight game for good.

Schmeling discovered that night that Joe was a sucker for a right, and a few months later he reaped the benefit of that discovery by nearly knocking Joe's head right off its hinges. Der Maxie fully expects to do it again when he tackles Poe for the title next June.

Prospects were that Joe, 18 months older and wiser than when he ran into the fury of Schmeling's right, would have a good opportunity to study his most dangerous rival. The odds favored Schmeling to win by 3 to 1, but a lot of critical observers expected him to have his hands full.

Thomas, though unknown to fame in the east, has knocked out a bushel of fair figures through the middle-west and west, and he's never yet had to dust the resin out of his pants. He's strong as they come and tough.

Avoid Clashing Colors, Display Contenders Told

The Salem Garden club, which is cooperating with The Salem News in sponsoring a Christmas lighting and decorating contest here, today stressed the fact that it is not necessary to go to great extremes in achieving a novel or artistic display.

Club officials point out that startling ensembles of colors are likely to appear garish and unattractive, and defeat the very purpose for which they were intended.

Use of clusters of electric lights of a single color will, very likely, be found to be far more effective than patchy strings of six or seven different colors.

Massed lights on trees or spread over shrubbery, in two colors, such as red and green, gold and blue, or purple and white, make very effective displays.

The best advice is, in short, avoid the commonplace but use good taste, in your decorations and you may be sure that the judges will give your effort more than passing interest.

JAPAN ACCEPTS BOMBING BLAME

One Yankee Seaman Dies, 15 Are Hurt As Panay Is Sunk

The Japanese admiral relates: "At 10 a. m. Monday, United States naval officials in Shanghai requested the Japanese navy to search for the Panay, giving us the location where they thought the gunboat was located. We examined the records of yesterday's air raids and found with dismay that where the Panay and the Standard Oil craft were located coincided with the scene of the air attack. We quickly concluded they were the mistaken objects of our bombs."

Will Bring About "Solution"
"The Japanese navy with the utmost sincerity is willing and prepared to bring about solution of this unfortunate incident, and hopes no extravagant reports of it will be circulated," the admiral told newspapermen.

"Both naval and military authorities have ordered forces in that area to render whatever assistance is possible to the victims, and also to withhold hostilities against Chinese thereabouts, thereby lessening the danger to the survivors. In addition, the navy is sending a warship to the scene with utmost haste and also is dispatching aircraft tomorrow with relief workers. The navy is prepared to assure Americans, should they desire that their own craft proceed to the scene, or bring the wounded to Shanghai, they will not be attacked."

Reports that the 12 Europeans and others, presumably officers and the remainder of the Panay crew, were seen on the left bank of the Yangtze above Nanking, alleviated fear that at least 18 American lives might have been lost.
